NIKON LENSES

Despite the many technological advances in varifocal lenses, most wearers can still experience visual stress in specific situations such as driving, juggling between the television and a mobile phone, and reading wide documents. These are moments where discomfort may be experienced, even with the best lenses and even with the latest designs.

Nikon's brand new 'MASTER' varifocal lenses provide wearers with stress free vision. Master utilises this technology to remove the distortions and blurriness usually experienced on the periphery of the lens creating a more stable image. The effect is to reduce the wearer's visual stress to a minimum level.
